

Delaware Maritime Education

Delaware Maritime Education is a Non Profit start up that is dedicated to training young men and women to be future workers in the Maritime, Transportation, and Port areas of Wilmington, DE. We have a study group made up of local and national leaders helping us define the Industry needs and employment requirements.

We are using some limited seed money from the Work Force Development funds of the Delaware Department of Labor to create a plan for future action.

Additional Data: We are a start up in the starting up phase. Our strength comes from the tremendous response we received in our request for help from the Maritime Industry

Our initial funding will come from the State and from in-kind contributions from partners from both the education and the Maritime communities. We will need help to sustain ourselves into years two and three but we are confident that it will happen.

Two items recently stimulated long term need in our area. First, the Port of Wilmington agreed to purchase an existing facility at Edgemoor on the Delaware for expansion. Second, the US Secretary of the Interior announced plans to open the mid atlantic area off of the mouth of the Delaware for leasing.
